CONVENED AS THE DESCHUTES COUNTY CONTRACT REVIEW BOARD

12. Before the Board was a Public Hearing on a Bid Protest from JAL Construction regarding a Notice of Intent to Award Contract for the Powell Butte Roundabout Project.

Chair Unger opened the public hearing. Chris Doty gave an overview of the project and the bid process through a staff report. The bid from JAL Construction was felt to be non-responsive since not all documents were submitted. He explained a typical bid process, what documents are required from all bidders, and details on this particular bid.

There is a mandatory pre-bid meeting to include all potential bidders to get everyone on the same page and to be clear about who needs to be kept informed of any changes or to clarify any issues. This helps to get the same information out to everyone equally. An addendum was included and was required to be in the bid documents, signed and dated. It provided clarifying information, adjusted quantities and other details, and is an important part of the bid package. It is imperative that all bidders make it clear that they know this is part of the package to be submitted. Addendum #1 was issued two days after the pre-bid meeting, listing 25 key points for clarification and changes to the original bid. It is a complex project.

JAL did not submit a written acknowledgment of this addendum, which is an irregularity and considered non-responsive. Staff can set aside some minor irregularities but not in regard to key documents. JAL did submit one revised bid sheet that accounts for pricing and unit quantities. They accounted for the revised bid sheet but did not return the addendum with the signature of the bidder as required.

In order to consider this bid as responsive, staff would have to speculate that they accepted the entire bid document and not just portions of it. They did not acknowledge the 25 different points and they may have assumed that they did so, based on a few submissions addressing a few of the 25 points. This violates the integrity of the bid process that is meant to be equal to all.

There are a few other legal elements in this determination. There is an item within the standards of specifications if not all addendums are acknowledged. ORS says that addenda are the only mechanism to make changes, and acknowledgement by signature and date is required.

These are the reasons staff felt they should go with the second bidder.

Tyler Storti, attorney for JAL, said he had several points to make. The protest includes other things that were not addressed in the staff report. Competitive bidding statute is meant to promote fairness, as well as keeping costs as low as possible for the taxpayers. Every effort is supposed to be made to obtain the lowest cost. ORS 279(c).375 says they shall award to the lowest responsible bidder. He feels the bid was responsive and responsible.

The bid documents had certain requirements, and nowhere in the original bid documents does it say that addenda need to be signed in the future. It says they are to use all required forms. There were multi-pages in the bid document which JAL completed, and the bid documents were submitted as required.

The only additional requirement, section 18(a), the notice of intent to award, refers to returning the bid form. Contract documents are referred to as documents that are 'bound herewith', which did not include addendum 1. The only thing he can think of is that at the bidder acknowledges receipt of addendum 1, and it is indisputable that JAL did receive this since one page was replaced, 53A, which JAL returned. So, therefore, it was acknowledged by the properly filled out bid form even if they did not receive the acknowledged addendum.

He feels it is mandatory to award this contract to JAL because they had the lowest bid, as a matter of law. Several other things in Oregon law and the bid forms require this, even if something was slightly irregular.

Section 16 of the instructions includes ‘failure of any bidder to receive such addendum or interpretation shall not relieve such bidder from any obligation under his bid as submitted. All addenda so issued are to be covered in the bid for such addenda to become part of the agreement’. He feels this says that if you don’t get the addenda, you are not relieved of the requirement to comply with it. This is saying it is the bidder’s problem, not the County’s.

Even more persuasive is 18(h) that deals with missing pages. It says some pages can be missing but shall be deemed as incorporated in the bid anyway. Even if this addendum was required, it is mandatory for the County to conclude that the missing pages are included.

Their bid was fully compliant and they had the lowest price. This could be implied as incorporated by reference. OAR 137.049 gives discretion to accept minor informalities, and he believes this includes failure of acknowledgment of an addendum when it is clear that they intend to be bound by it. The County has discretion under Rule to overlook this.

There is a reference in staff/s report to ODOT standard specifications applicable to work on the project. It does not refer to the bid paperwork but the actual work. Standard specs on bidding would be inconsistent regarding this.

Staff’s report dated February 3 refers to OAR 137-47, goods and services. He believes that OAR 137-49 applies to this. It is a matter of fairness to bidders, following the law and trying to get the lowest price.

Mike Levesque, one of the owners of JAL Construction, was seated with Mr. Storti, but said he had nothing to add.

---

Ian Woodford of Shamrock NW Construction said that there are multiple circumstances that set precedence in Oregon and relate to being non-responsive. He has also had this happen to him. JAL is a good company. But the addendum clearly states in bold, capital letters that it is required to be signed and submitted. There is a lot of information that is acknowledged by this addendum.

Deschutes County clearly follows ODOT’s requirements. The argument that ODOT specs do not pertain to this document is incorrect. The main thing he would say is that the County has to preserve the integrity of its bid process.

All other bidders submitted this document, so it was very clear. The savings to the taxpayers on this big project is $3,000, not large enough to ruin the integrity of the bid process.

Chair Unger said that there has been no written information submitted today, so he asked the Board if it is ready for a decision. Commissioner Baney stated that she appreciates the comments made. These companies are both good partners. The integrity of the bid process is critical to contracting regardless of the amount. This form was clearly required and not one that might be considered as being okay being left out.

Commissioner DeBone agreed. They cannot make assumptions on all the different parts and pieces, and if it is not signed, much of the detail would be left open-ended and could cause problems later. Chair Unger said all bidders returned the addendum. JAL has been in business for a long time and knows the process.

BANEY: Move denial of the protest and that the appropriate documents be prepared in this regard.

DEBONE: Second.

16. OTHER ITEMS

Before the Board was Consideration of Whether to Hear Appeals of Decisions on the KCDG/TID Reservoirs and Ski Lake Project (Order No.
2016-010).

This issue was continued for discussion at the Board work session on February 8, due to time restraints then. Anthony Raguine said the Board was given options on whether to hear or not to hear the appeals. He noted that Tim Ramis submitted a sheet to speak today, but another person was told that the public was not allowed to speak during this process.

Chair Unger indicated testimony is at the discretion of the Board but needs to be fair, and it was not recognized that speakers would be allowed to testify. David Doyle said allowing testimony could be a procedural problem since it is not a contested, adversarial matter.

Commissioner DeBone feels he does not want to hear these appeals.
Commissioner Baney said it is rare for them to deny hearing an appeal.
However, after reviewing the documents further, she feels the information in the record is clear and she would rather not hear this. This issue will probably go to a higher body, but is up to the applicants on what they wish to do next.

Chair Unger said this was not a typical issue, and he has some concerns with the Hearings Officer's decision on some points. He is concerned about statements made regarding characteristics of wildlife, ponds and recreation. He feels the applicants should continue forward with whatever process they choose.

BANEY: Move signature of Order No. 2016-010, declining review of the appeals.

DEBONE: Second.

VOTE: BANEY: Yes.

DEBONE: Yes.

UNGER: Chair votes yes.
